BIDEN NOD TO GAY MARRIAGE

Joe Biden
on 'Meet the Press' GETTY IMAGES

Los Angeles Times

Vice President Joe Biden gave a nod to the same-sex marriage movement Sunday morning by saying publicly that he is comfortable with the idea of "men marrying men" and "women marrying women."

In an interview on "Meet the Press," Biden declined to rule out the possibility that, in a second Obama term, the White House might move from its current position of supporting civil unions to fully backing same-sex marriage.

"I am absolutely comfortable with the fact that men marrying men, women marrying women, and heterosexual men and women marrying another are entitled to the same exact rights, all the civil rights, all the civil liberties," Biden told show host David Gregory.

The president has said for months that his thoughts on gay marriage are "evolving" and hasn't ruled out that he might one day support it.

Senior administration officials said Sunday afternoon that there has been no change to the official position and that Biden only said what the president has said before.

Gay rights groups can still seize on the words and use them to rally support for the president's re-election effort, which explicitly notes Obama's record on gay rights as it shifts into full campaign mode this weekend.

President Obama's new stump speech gives a subtle nod in a line reminding voters that he ended the "don't ask, don't tell" policy governing gays in the military.

"We are encouraged by Vice President Biden's comments, who rightly articulated that loving and committed gay and lesbian couples should be treated equally," said Joe Solmonese, president of the Human Rights Campaign. "Now is the time for President Obama to speak out for full marriage equality for same-sex couples."

Biden didn't say he is pushing to support gay marriage in a second Obama term, but he didn't rule it out, either.

Asked if it were a possibility, Biden stammered and then said, "I don't know the answer to that."

Setback in N.C.?

Efforts to legalize gay marriage could experience a setback Tuesday if North Carolina voters decide to amend the state constitution to ban same-sex marriages and civil unions. Same-sex marriage is illegal in North Carolina. But the state has stood out as the only one in the Southeast that has not passed a constitutional amendment solidifying such a ban.

Recent polling shows the proposed amendment stands a good chance of passing. In a survey of 982 likely primary voters, 55 percent of those questioned supported the amendment banning same-sex marriage while 41 percent opposed it.

REUTERS

“... it's a simple proposition: Who do you love? Who do you love? And will you be loyal to the person you love? ... And that's what people are finding out, is what all marriages at their root are about, whether they're marriages of lesbians or gay men or heterosexuals.”

—Joe Biden on "Meet the Press"

Setup: After filing for bankruptcy, Nadya Suleman, aka Octomom, told CNN she'd be open to doing a porn film to pay the bills.

@ERNESTWILKINS

Quit lying to the people, Wilkins. You know damn well you and everyone else in the country will watch this, not because it piques any sexual desire, but because it belongs to history: the absolute nadir of our culture. We are obliged as Americans to view it.

A woman who got famous because she insisted on giving birth to eight children and then subsequently went bankrupt, only to decide to settle her debts by appearing in pornography will pretty much summarize the early 21st century for historians. Our grandchildren will take seminars on this video.

What could come along that could possibly top this? Robert Pattinson's colonoscopy live-streamed? A Chris Brown instructional video on being a good boyfriend? No, this is the bottom of the abyss, the ultimate intersection of our waning attention spans, pornography fever and celebrity obsession.

This will be a cultural artifact that, should aliens stumble upon the charred remnants of our world thousands of years from now, will lead them to turn to each other and say, "Wait: She had eight progeny via self-insemination and this was, for some reason, interesting to the masses? And why, therefore, would they wish to view her copulate? This civilization bewilders me."

REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR STEPHEN MARKLEY IS THE AUTHOR OF "PUBLISH THIS BOOK."
REDEYECICAGO.COM/MARKLEY

Sorry, but there's no way in hell I'm trying to watch Octomom double-click her mouse on tape. She actually isn't bad-looking, but the public's overall ... how do I say this ... thirst for the whole endeavor is what turns me off.

She did some light crowing in the past about not setting a bad example for her small army of kids, yet she has no issue redacting that and posing topless when a magazine throws her a few coins (as she already has). The move is a giant cry for attention.

Another beef: Her rationale for doing this is to get money to keep her house. According to her bankruptcy filings, she's about $1 million in debt. Wait a second here. You're a million in the hole (no pun intended) and your first immediate thought is "PORNO!"? People do all kinds of jobs to pay the mortgage and live debt-free, and most of them don't start with "blow" or "hand." Also, if I have to watch a G-list celebrity pleasure herself, can it not be the G-list celebrity whose only claim to fame is birthing 14 human beings?

I will agree that reality stars—no matter how obscure—always will garner interest when it comes to porn. I'd like to offer a solution. Here's a small list of pseudo-famous women I'd rather see do porno than Nadya Suleman: Wendy Williams, Cloris Leachman, Linda Hogan, the auctioneer's wife from "Storage Wars" and Jocelyn Wildenstein (Google that last one).

A national survey released Sunday says Chicago still has the nation's highest gas prices, averaging $3.85 per gallon.

TIME TO REMEMBER

Hundreds participated Sunday in the 80th annual St. Jude Police League Memorial March and Service, which honors fallen officers with a parade and ceremony near the Soldier Field Gold Star Families Memorial and Park. Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy, who spoke during the service, said it's significant for families to know their loved ones will never be forgotten. NANCY STONE/TRIBUNE PHOTOS

Sexual assault, beating

A man forced his way into the home of a 46-year-old woman early Saturday in the 4500 block of South LaCrosse Avenue in LeClaire Courts on the Southwest Side, then beat and sexually assaulted her, police said.

Body found in Edgewater

Police are investigating after a woman who did not have ID on her was found dead Saturday in an Edgewater alley. Someone found the woman lying face-down behind a Toyota dealership in the 5600 block of North Broadway on the North Side, a police spokesman said.

NATO: Shut down LSD

Lake Shore Drive and I-55 near McCormick Place will be closed during the NATO summit, federal and Chicago officials announced Sunday. In addition to the highways, the security measures for the summit also will close significant portions of Columbus Drive and Roosevelt Road near the museum campus; several streets near the convention center on the near South Side also will be closed.

Rash of shootings

Ten people were shot between Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning on the city's South and West sides, including a man who died Sunday after being shot on the Lower West Side and a 12-year-old girl who survived a gunshot wound to her foot on the West Side on Saturday night.

Police seek mother, daughters

Police are searching for a 41-year-old woman and her two daughters, who went missing Tuesday from Brighton Park. Maria Miranda has threatened to kill herself and her two daughters Victoria Ortega, 19, and Mariana Gomez, 1, police said, describing the three as "endangered missings."

QUOTABLE

Here I was saying, 'I'm gay, and I want to start this group.' ... I've been out eight years now. I was still slightly terrified."

—Petty Officer 3rd Class Ann Foster, 26, requested in January to charter what is believed to be the first gay-lesbian-bisexual support group on a military base. The group Foster, a lesbian, started at Naval Station Great Lakes was organized a few months after the Sept. 20 repeal of the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy.

The Illinois Lottery said someone bought a winning Mega Millions lottery ticket worth $118 million at a Citgo gas station in Glenwood. The store, near 187th and Halsted streets in the far south suburb, was the only one to sell a ticket matching all five numbers and the Megaball. The winner hasn't been identified.

1 Arizona bans funding for Planned Parenthood

Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer has signed off on a bill that will prevent abortion providers like Planned Parenthood from receiving public funds in most cases, her office said Saturday. Kansas and North Carolina have enacted similar legislation, while Indiana, New Jersey and Wisconsin have used their budget processes to bar funding for abortion providers.

2 Foul play suspected in Churchill Downs death

A body discovered at Churchill Downs on Sunday, a day after the racetrack hosted the Kentucky Derby, may have been the victim of a homicide, police said. Workers in the barn area discovered the body early in the morning and notified track security.

3 9/11 defendant's lawyer lashes out

The defense team for Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, charged with capital murder in the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, on Sunday angrily called the military commission legal process a political "regime" set up to put him and the four other defendants to death.

4 Airstrike kills al-Qaida operative

A senior operative of al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula wanted for his role in the USS Cole bombing was killed by an airstrike in Yemen on Sunday, Yemeni officials said. Fahd al Quso, 37, was killed while riding in a vehicle in the Rafdh district in Shabwa province, according to the officials.

Secret Service escort details encounters

The woman at the center of the Secret Service prostitution scandal embraced her notoriety and spilled colorful details Friday about alcohol flowing like water and Secret Service agents dancing on a bar.

5 PARIS Francois Hollande, the winner of Sunday's presidential runoff, thanked his supporters in a victory speech and promised to be a president for all of France.

"Many people have been waiting for this moment for many long years. Others, younger, have never known such a time. ... I am proud to be capable of bringing about hope again," he told a crowd of cheering supporters at a rally in Tulle.

"Tonight, there are not two Frances. ... There is only one France, only one nation that is united with the same destiny," Hollande said.

The president-elect congratulated French President Nicolas Sarkozy, who earlier conceded to Hollande as results from exit polls and official tallies in the runoff election came in.

"I carry the entire responsibility for this defeat, and I'm going to say why. I fought for the values of responsibility, and I'm not a man who does not accept his responsibilities," Sarkozy said from his Paris campaign headquarters, as members of the crowd shouted, "No!"

With more than two-thirds of votes counted, Hollande was leading with 50.8 percent to Sarkozy's 49.2 percent, the nation's Interior Ministry said. Voter turnout was reported at 73 percent.

Exit polls said Hollande won 51.9 percent of the vote, France 2 television reported.

Crowds roared at the center-left candidate's campaign headquarters as the exit poll results came out Sunday evening.

SWEEPING CHANGE

Nicolas Sarkozy's defeat marks the latest—and most significant—of at least half a dozen European leaders swept from office during the eurozone economic crisis, including the Greek and Italian prime ministers.

"It's a great night, full of joy for so many young people all across the country," said Thierry Marchal-Beck, president of the Movement of Young Socialists.

Hollande will be the nation's first left-wing president since Francois Mitterrand left office in 1995.

Beastie Boys bassist dies

Adam "MCA" Yauch, a founding member of the pioneering rap band Beastie Boys, died Friday after a nearly three-year battle with cancer, the band's publicist said. He was 47.

Yauch revealed in 2009 that he had a cancerous tumor in a salivary gland. As a result, the band canceled its scheduled concerts and delayed the release of an album.

"I started feeling this little lump in my throat, like you would feel if you have swollen glands or something like that, like you'd feel if you have a cold, so I didn't really think it was anything," he said then in a video to fans.

Yauch, a self-taught bassist and vocalist, underwent surgery to treat the tumor that year.

Bulls face elimination after uninspired loss in Philadelphia

RedEye

No Derrick Rose. No Joakim Noah. Down 2 games to 1 to the 76ers in Philadelphia.

That's what faced the Bulls heading into Sunday's huge Game 4. To call it a must-win seemed insufficient. But that was the reality.

A loss and the Bulls are in a 3-1 hole without two of their best—if not their two best—players.

A win, however, and it's tied at two games apiece with the Bulls retaining home-court advantage.

RedEye followed Sunday's game, quarter by quarter, to see how they responded.

FINAL

76ers lead series 3-1

FIRST QUARTER

It looked bleak quickly in the City of Brotherly Love. The energized 76ers sprinted out to a 10-point lead in just seven minutes of play. When coach Tom Thibodeau called a timeout with 4:45 left, the Bulls strolled to the sideline as if they were trudging through quicksand. Their body language was that of a beaten team.

To make matters worse, Luol Deng appeared to hurt his ailing wrist when he fell in the paint. But he was a bright spot, shooting 3-of-5 with six of the Bulls' 15 points. C.J. Watson, playing in place of Rose, continued to struggle and was the only starter not to score in the opening quarter.

SCORE: Philadelphia 24, Bulls 15

SECOND QUARTER

Taj Gibson single-handedly revived the Bulls in the opening minutes of the quarter. He scored the Bulls' first 10 points of the quarter—and 12 of their first 15—to help cut the Philadelphia lead to one with about seven minutes left.

That spurt seemed to finally wake up the Bulls defense, which was its usual smothering self. The 76ers scored just 12 points in the opening eight minutes of the quarter. The lull allowed the Bulls to pull even, and eventually take the lead, with 30 seconds left in the half before Spencer Hawes hit a 3-pointer to give Philly a two-point half-time lead.

SCORE: Philadelphia 44, Bulls 42

THIRD QUARTER

The third turned into an old-fashioned NBA playoff basketball game, with each team hitting big shots and putting up impressive defensive stops. And, lo and behold, Watson scored for the first time in six quarters. SIX QUARTERS! The shot opened the floodgates for Watson, who finished with seven points. Neither team, though, seemed to make a statement or stake their claim to the game. It remained a close contest throughout.

SCORE: Philadelphia 64, Bulls 63

THE STARTING LINE

» Cubs vs. Atlanta, 7:05 p.m. WCIU » White Sox at Cleveland, 12:05 p.m. WGN, 6:05 p.m. CSN (doubleheader) » Cubs designate Blake DeWitt for assignment.

BULL PEN

ROUNDUP OF PLAYOFF NEWS AND NOTES

The walking wounded

Joakim Noah, who suffered a severely sprained left ankle in Friday's Game 3 loss, was on crutches Sunday. Although Bulls coach Tom Thibodeau described Noah as day-to-day and said he is improving, he is doubtful to return for Game 5 on Tuesday at the United Center.

Afternoon blues

The Bulls might be able to sympathize with the Cubs and their day-game problems. The Bulls have lost seven of 10 afternoon games after Sunday's game. They did manage to beat Philly in an afternoon start in Game 1.

THE MOUTHWATCH

"I thought Luol was driving. Almost every time he got the ball, there was contact on a lot of his shots. C.J. was driving the ball. There was one play at the end of the game where he got hit in the face and didn't get the call. It's tough."

—Carlos Boozer on Sunday's officiating. He and Luol Deng combined to take one free throw during the game.

THE DIGIT

17 Points C.J. Watson scored in the second half Sunday.

FOURTH QUARTER

Without Rose and Noah, it was going to be a struggle; everyone knew that. And that's how it played out in the fourth quarter. The Bulls put themselves in a hole quickly, scoring just two points in the first four minutes while the 76ers opened the lead to five. That's all they needed as the Bulls lacked the firepower to mount a comeback, although Watson tried to play the part with 10 points.

See ya at the United Center on Tuesday.

... Reality stars. "Bench mob wives" coming to VH1. Production starts six weeks earlier than expected.

2 How would you describe your confidence in Tom Thibodeau now?

I'm still a believer. In this town you don't count out short dudes who are good at screaming at people.

Solid. When he smiled the other night, girls straight-up fainted.

As confident as I was in Admiral Ackbar in "Return of the Jedi." IT'S A TRAP!

Shaken, but not stirred.

Deng's picture was on my milk carton. Rose and Noah can't walk. Not all on Thibs.

3 Blackhawks playoffs vs. Bulls playoffs. Discuss.

What are you, some kind of sadist?

Can I just ignore both?

Bulls playoffs have caused me to drink a lot more than the Blackhawks did.

Injured stars, absent role players, heartbreaking losses. A double downer for fans.

There's actually a few guys on the Bulls I wouldn't mind Raffi Torres hitting.

4 What'd you say about Adam Dunn last year you'd like to take back?

Sorry for comparing the hole in your swing to the Grand Canyon. I was immature, and kind of on a NatGeo kick.

He looked like the bastard son of the Thing and Brock Lesnar.

With all my drinking over the Bulls I don't remember last week, let alone last year.

I regret nothing! You hear me? Nothing!

Unless he can take back his .159 average in 2011, I'm not taking back anything.

5 The closer is to the Cubs as ...

... the voice of reason is to Kanye West's entourage right now: clearly not effective.

... I am with girls: I'm literally just throwing everything I have out there.

... drinks are to me on my birthday weekend: both lead to disaster.

... a chaperone is to a dance: Just when things are looking good, they break it up.

Just take the "C" off closer for your answer.

He Dunn good

White Sox slugger seems to have bounced back from terrible 2011

RedEye

Chicago, collectively, just might owe Adam Dunn an apology or two.

Dunn, the White Sox's prized offseason acquisition before the 2011 season, sleepwalked through a historically bad season. He had the dubious honor of setting the Sox record for strikeouts in a single season with 177, had a gag-inducing .159 batting average and an even worse .142 average with runners in scoring position.

Sox fans, Cubs fans—of course—and the media let him have it. By the end of the season he was being booed mercilessly.

But that was last year.

Dunn's 2012 already is bringing smiles to fans' faces.

Entering Sunday's game, he had eight homers, 22 RBIs, a .250 batting average and a .348 average with runners in scoring position. At the same point last year, Dunn was hitting .165 with three home runs and 13 RBIs.

On Saturday, he played the hero in the Sox's 3-2 win in Detroit, hitting a two-run homer in the ninth to win it.

"He's just in a good position to hit and he worked hard in the off-season and in spring training to get to that position," slugger Paul Konerko said after the win. "Now he's just rolling with it."

And so are Sox fans.

What's hot for sunglasses this summer

By Lisa Arnett | REDEYE

Everybody needs sunglasses.

That's what Eric Williams thought when he started selling sunglasses as a street vendor in 1989 to pay his way through college. Now he sells them year-round at The Silver Room, the Wicker Park accessory boutique he's owned since 1997.

"Male, female, it doesn't matter how big you are, how small you are, it's a very universal thing to wear," he said. "Everyone needs sunglasses when it's sunny outside."

Besides protecting the eyes and the sensitive skin around them from damaging UV rays, sunglasses have always been a key player in summer fashion.

"Accessories in general are a big thing for the overall look. Sunglasses are kind of like the cherry on top," Roger Rodriguez, co-owner of South Loop streetwear shop Jugernaut. "It can take you from looking cool to super-cool."

Whether you're beach-bound or sipping cocktails at a rooftop bar, sunglasses are a small way to transform your look. "They give you instant attitude, so in one pair you may look very glamorous and very red carpet, another you might look a bit more vintage and feminine, another you might look a little bit more athletic or modern or minimalist," said Gregg Andrews, Oak Brook-based fashion creative director for Nordstrom. We tapped industry buyers to dish on this summer's trends, plus shopping tips for picking the perfect pair. LMARNETT@TRIBUNE.COM | @REDEYEETATS

SHADY CELEBS

From John Lennon's wire-rimmed spectacles to the Olsen twins' monstrous frames to Kanye West's shutter shades, celebrities lead the pack for sunglasses trends. Check out some of our all-time favorites at redeyechicago.com/sunglasses.

CURRENT TRENDS

"What we're seeing is the idea of classics with a twist," Andrews said. "We're seeing really familiar shapes that have been tweaked and restyled to make them look new and contemporary."

Look for oversized or colored Wayfarers (the Ray-Ban style popularized by James Dean and, more recently, celebs such as Kate Moss) and aviators (think Tom Cruise in "Top Gun") trimmed in metals other than silver. "Gold is really, really moving forward as the new metal of choice ...

and we're also seeing rose gold and bronze colors for men," Andrews said.

"Sunglasses have been around forever and everyone's trying to reinvent them in some way," Rodriguez said. "Right now what I'm noticing is [companies] are doing more than just standard metal or standard plastic or acrylic." Rodriguez's store Jugernaut stocks leather-covered sunglasses

HOW TO PICK

Chase trends all you want, but the best way to find the right pair is to try them on and see if the style flatters your face, said Coyote DeGroot, owner of Labrabbit Optics, a Noble Square store that stocks vintage and contemporary sunglasses.

"Occasionally, I do have people that come in trying to mimic a certain celebrity's look. Sometimes trying to look like Tom Cruise works. And sometimes it's a crash-and-burn scenario," DeGroot said. "I think there's a common misconception that there's some sort of golden ratio when it comes to face shape and eyewear shape. That does factor in ... but there are so many other things to take into account: the rest of your look, what other sorts of things you like to wear, your spirit, your attitude."

For a good physical fit, check that the sunglasses fit the bridge of your nose and the width of your temple, Andrews said.

"They should feel stable on your face; you should be able to move your head up, down, forward and back without them moving."

When it comes to size, bigger still tends to be better, but keep scale in mind if you have a smaller face. "There's an important distinction to be made between large sunglasses and face-eating sunglasses," DeGroot said.

As for the UV protection rating, consider where you'll be wearing the glasses. "If you're wearing them in your car, you probably don't need as much UV protection as you do if you're out walking or riding your bike along the lakefront," Andrews said.

HOW MUCH TO SPEND

How much to shell out for sunglasses depends on not only how much you're willing to invest in a unique accessory, but also how well you plan to take care of them.

"People say, 'I don't want to pay $200 for a new pair of sunglasses, I'm going to lose them anyway, so I don't feel so bad paying $15 for them, and I can buy four pairs,'" Williams said.

As popular as inexpensive sunglasses are, there's a big demand in the $100-and-up price range.

"They're one of those accessories that people are willing to spend a little more money on because they do provide a sense of luxury to an outfit," Andrews said.

Serina Ladd, assistant buyer at Lakeview store Eye Spy Optical, said customers who spend more on sunglasses tend to take better care of them.

"You're going to treat them with more respect than if you went to Target and bought a cheap pair of sunglasses," Ladd said. "So what we tell our customers [is], invest in something you're going to want to wear and that you're comfortable in and that you will actually not misplace."

and he's also looking to carry wooden sunglasses from a company called Shwood. Patterns such as cheetah also provide a new spin on traditional animal-inspired neutrals such as tortoiseshell.

For women, vintage-inspired styles such as cateyes are still going strong, especially in bright colors and pastel tones, which were big trends in clothing this spring, according to Lauren Griffiths, buyer at Detroit-based See, which has three Chicago locations and manufacturers its own line of sunglasses. 1950s and '60s-inspired geometric styles such as octagonal or hexagonal shapes, especially in transparent materials, are also big, as are ombre frames with a darker shade at the top fading into a lighter hue at the bottom.

If colored sunglasses sound too bold, look for two-tone style with a neutral front and color hidden on the backside of the frame. "It might be black or tortoiseshell or a more subtle color on the outside of the frame, but then the inside is hot pink or fluorescent yellow, so just at certain angles, you can pick up that pop of color," Griffiths said.

'New Girl' romance?

Evanston native Jake Johnson hints at Nick and Jess hookup

Jake Johnson plays Nick Miller on 'New Girl'
LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

By Ryan Smith | FOR REDEYE

"New Girl" star Jake Johnson wouldn't object if romance bloomed between his character, Nick, and Zooey Deschanel's "adorkable" Jess in the hit Fox comedy.

"If I happen to have a day of work lying in bed with Zooey Deschanel," he told RedEye during a stop in Chicago recently, "I mean, it is for work, and I'm a married man, but that's not a bad way to get paid for a day job. Just sayin'."

Johnson isn't the only person who would be OK with the pairing. The 32-year-old Evanston native gets stopped on the street by fans insisting he break the seemingly endless will-they-or-won't-they relationship tension between the two characters.

"People come up randomly and want to have discussions on why I haven't kissed her yet," he said. "They're like 'Dude, how come you haven't made a move?' And I'm like 'Dude, it's not reality, it's a TV show. And I don't have the power to make decisions.'"

But with the series' freshman season coming to a close at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Johnson hints that "something" will happen on the romance front. "I can't say much, but the Jess-and-Nick story is explored. She and I are alone in the desert and things happen with the evolution of that relationship," he said.

Jess and Nick might be up in the air, but Johnson's growing profile in Hollywood is not. In addition to "New Girl," the actor made an unusual appearance as a school principal in the Jonah Hill comedy "21 Jump Street" earlier this spring.

He follows that big-screen appearance with the quirky indie comedy "Safety Not Guaranteed" that also stars "Parks and Recreation" actress Aubrey Plaza. And he recently sold a pitch to Warner Bros. for a comedy about a group of guys that tries to form an Italian mafia because they love mafia movies.

In the meantime, he's excited for the second season of "New Girl." Johnson said he hopes that in addition to a possible new romantic storyline with Deschanel, he'll get more fun stuff to do with a character he describes as a "good, smart person, but a damned idiot."

"When the season started he was a real grounded guy, but as the show went on he got crazier and crazier and I like that," he said. "I can do the straight man role, but it gets boring. I like when Nick is spiraling out of control and is easily persuaded to do very dumb things."

RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

FIVE QUESTIONS

You're a big Cubs fan. Would you ever perform the seventh-inning stretch at Wrigley Field?

Of course I would. It would probably be the scariest thing in the world. I'd probably have a bunch of cocktails and get lit up a bit and do it Harry Caray-style and just hope I don't forget the lines and screw up too much. I'm a terrible singer. But it'd be really fun to do—a dream come true.

What's one of your favorite places in Chicago?

My favorite bar is the Old Town Ale House. That was the place in high school that you could sneak into. I'm not sure if you still can, this was the '90s and it was a different era. But that place was the coolest of cool. We knew [John] Belushi would go there and [Chris] Farley went there. My friends and I, we were obsessed with Second City and Bill Murray and all those guys.

Zooey Deschanel has a new iPhone commercial where she acts very similar to her "New Girl" character. Does she act like that in real life?

Not that much. Zooey has turned into a very good friend of mine and she is smart and cool and she isn't as quirky as Jess. Jess isn't a very smart businesswoman and Zooey is, and she understands things, she's got multiple businesses. What makes Jess fun is that she doesn't understand a lot, and she doesn't want to because she'd rather live in her own naive world. That's not Zooey at all.

What would be your iPhone commercial be like?

I'd be at a poker table in some shady backroom game and I'd be the only person speaking English somewhere in Beijing. Maybe it'd be a cockfight and I'd be talking to Siri about how I could get more Chinese currency in a hurry and the fastest way out of this basement because one of the guys wants to kill me. "Siri, I think this son of a [bleep] wants to kill me, what's the closest exit?"

I looked at your IMDB page. You played Jesus in the "Harold and Kumar" Christmas movie?

Yeah, it was one of the crazier experiences I've ever had. It was me and a bunch of strippers because it was me as Jesus in a nightclub in heaven. Neil Patrick Harris is trying to get into heaven. It was really weird because a lot of girls apparently have a sexual thing for Jesus, which I would have never guessed. I guess maybe it's a daddy issue thing? I was in full Jesus gear and getting vibes, and I was like, "Man, this really trips me out."

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Taurus April 20-May 20

Mercury is moving into your sign for a few weeks, giving you the gift of gab. So use this to your advantage. You'll find it easy to seduce unwary strangers with your sexy, witty words.

Gemini May 21-June 21

You know that restless feeling you get about every 10 days? It's happening again. You're wondering if it's time to start a new relationship. This could prove inconvenient if you've just gotten married to your baby daddy.

Cancer June 22-July 22

You have every excuse to be cranky. Your lover can do nothing right, no matter how hard she tries. Your kids are more annoying than usual, and you'll find yourself plotting to give them away.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You rarely lack self-confidence as a big, boastful Fire sign. Unfortunately Neptune is changing that at the moment. You might wonder if sleeping with three people at once is a wise idea.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You're great at telling other people what's wrong with them. This is not a sexy quality, and it could explain why you're alone at the moment. Mercury says start working on your empathy.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

Venus is inspiring you to become more intimate with someone. Even if you've been married for 50 years, you might not be particularly emotionally close with your sweetheart. You can fix this. Share.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

You could find communication bogging down. Maybe you're trying to send sexy text messages, but you're suddenly stumbling with your words. Take it slowly and use spell check.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You could gain insight into a troublesome sexual situation. Unfortunately, identifying the problem will not necessarily fix it. You'll have to put in a little blood, sweat and tears to make things better.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Your career is driving you more nuts than usual, thanks to Jupiter. Workaholics like you can't stand it when money matters are out of control. This is why you need more sex. Learn to relax and chill out with your significant other.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Your honey could be in a weird mood as Venus stirs up some mischief. He might ask you to give permission for a threesome. You have the option of saying no, but that won't be particularly fun.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

Friends or family members are trying to get you out of the house. Mercury says it's time to stop living in your head, because it's getting kind of claustrophobic in there. Do some socializing.

Aries March 21-April 19

You're in the mood to get into trouble, thanks to Uranus. You're bored to tears with your sex life. It doesn't matter if you've been attending huge orgies, it's all just a bit dull. Try something new.

What's "American Idol" doing in the lineup?

When Lollapalooza released its 2012 lineup last month, one name in particular on the rock-heavy list, which includes Black Sabbath and Jack White, had some scratching their heads: Haley Reinhart.

Yes, the local girl from "American Idol."

Lollapalooza has included the occasional pop act in the past, but never a former "American Idol" contestant—let alone one who finished third. Still, those familiar with Reinhart's eclectic sound know why the 21-year-old Wheeling native may turn out to be a great fit and could win over a music snob or two.

"The kind of audience I'm speaking to is a very wide range of people," Reinhart said Thursday when asked why she was chosen to be the first "Idol" alum to perform at Lolla. She was appearing at the grand opening of the AT&T Retail Innovation Center in Arlington Heights. "It could be because [my sound is] sultry, rock, R&B—all of these things combined. I'm going for something very raw and organic."

Reinhart, whose debut album "Listen Up!" hits stores May 22 and features a cameo from 2010 Lollapalooza artist B.o.B., will take the stage Aug. 3 at Lolla in Grant Park. Of course, the crowd will hardly look like the family-friendly audience Reinhart performed for on "Idol" in 2011. "Forget You" singer and "The Voice" judge Cee Lo Green was booed during his Lolla performance last year. Reinhart said she isn't too worried.

"It's intimidating because there are so many people, but I've grown up my whole life performing in front of an audience," Reinhart said. "It's going to be a party more than anything."

Haley Reinhart performs at Allstate Arena.

1 Number of journalism awards Beyonce has won. The singer won an award from the New York Association of Black Journalists for an article that appeared in Essence magazine about her decision to take nine months away from her career to travel and find herself. The award has ruffled feathers in the journalism world.

Remembering MCA

The news of Beastie Boy Adam Yauch's death from cancer Friday reverberated through the celebriverse. The Red Hot Chili Peppers dedicated their New York-area show Friday, with singer Anthony Kiedis taking the stage in a homemade "MCA" T-shirt, billboard.com reports. Kiedis was just one of a flood of celebs to memorialize Yauch over the weekend:

"He left the world a lot of beauty. I hope you carry that flame. Adam was for real."

—Anthony Kiedis, at a concert Friday

"Adam was incredibly sweet and the most sensitive artist."

—Russell Simmons, in a blog post

"Crushed to hear the news of Adam Yauch's passing. A true pioneer of art. My thoughts and prayers are with his family and loved ones. #RIPMCA"

Bieber's boxing bromance?

Yes, that was Justin Bieber accompanying Floyd Mayweather into the ring during Mayweather's title fight against Miguel Cotto on Saturday night in Las Vegas. The "Boyfriend" singer, who got plenty of screen time, was a surprising addition to Mayweather's sizable entourage, which also included 50 Cent. Biels later tweeted, after Mayweather won: "Hard Work & Dedication . congrats champ. glad i could be a part of it."

Name game

Twentieth Century Fox has changed the name of its alien-invasion comedy "Neighborhood Watch"—starring Ben Stiller, Vince Vaughn and Jonah Hill—to "The Watch" to distance the movie from the February shooting death of Trayvon Martin by neighborhood watch captain George Zimmerman, Variety reports.

Bringing its A-game

After breaking box-office records overseas, "The Avengers" has conquered America. The superhero flick had the biggest opening weekend of all time in the U.S. and Canada this weekend, grossing a powerful $200.3 million, according to an estimate from distributor Walt Disney Studios. The movie soared beyond expectations, easily surpassing the $168.2 million 2011 debut of previous record-holder "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2." "Avengers" also raked in more money in its first three days than strong performers such as "The Dark Knight," "The Hunger Games" and "Spider-Man 3," all of which collected more than $150 million upon their debuts.
